ABM Pew Reflection

There are many street children in Addis Ababa. By day, begging, or playing in the road, at night, they go hungry and are vulnerable to violence and insecurity.

Jesus says we should be like little children, because children are able to receive with delight and without embarrassment. Helpless in so many ways, they trust those who care for them.

In the next parable is the rich ruler. This man is what the Nuer call 'Ram mi rieng-rieng' – a pillar of society. There is a clear warning here for those in positions of authority. What is needed is a un-embarrassed, child-like dependence upon our Heavenly Father.

The Christian Church should show care for all God's 'little ones' as they are called here.

- Pray for the children's ministry of your Church; for the children themselves and for all those who give their time, love and attention to nurturing the faith of our young people.
